

How to Detect the Alum Baking Powder

"Which are the alum baking powders; how can I avoid them unless they are named?" asks a housekeeper.

Here is one way: take the can of a low-priced powder in your hand and read the ingredient clause upon the back label. The law requires that if the powder contains alum that fact must be there stated. If you find one of the ingredients named alum, or sulphate of aluminum, you have found an alum baking powder.

There is another and a better way. You don't have to know the names of the alum powders. Use Royal Baking Powder only; that assures you a cream of tartar powder, and the purest and most healthful baking powder beyond question.

RESOLUTIONS.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted by the M. E. Church South Sunday School Mar. 29, 1914, to-wit:

Resolved, that this Sunday School has sustained a great loss in the removal of Mrs. Ruth W. Atkinson, from Louisa to Paintsville. We can assure the people of Paintsville of her sterling worth. As a member of our school she was faithful and full of faith, and performed her duties so thoroughly and cheerfully that it was a pleasure to be associated with her in the Master's work. Therefore we follow her with our best wishes, and heartily commend her to the people of Paintsville.

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to her as evidence of our esteem, and that the same be published in the Big Sandy News and the Paintsville Herald.

Respectfully submitted,
NORA K. SULLIVAN,
M. S. BURNS,
Committee.

THE PASTOR.

THE TREE BUTCHER.

The NEWS earnestly commends the following from the Courier-Journal to the consideration of all concerned. The mutilated trees in this city bear mute but potent testimony to the truth contained in the article published:

At this time of the year the tree butcher appears upon the scene. As a rule he is paid by the day. The more he whacks out of the shade tree the more money he makes, and he is a practical person whose artistic temperament does not interfere with his making a living. He is capable, in a physical and moral sense, of despoiling in 100 minutes the growth of 100 years. In many instances he knows no more about how trees should be trimmed, or whether they should be trimmed, than a pig knows about geometry. The mutilated trees he leaves bleeding in his wake silently attest his vandalism.

Persons who have shade trees should pause to think about how slowly limbs and trunks grow, and how quickly they may be destroyed, and how short human life is, and how hard it is to acquire good shade trees, and how much, therefore, uncut trees are worth in the way of added value when real estate is to be sold.

Often than not it is better to let the shade trees alone. If for any reason any cutting of branches is advisable it is well to get an expert to do the work. As experts are rare, and proclaimed experts numerous and importunate, it is very well to sit nearby and look on when any cutting is done. By halting the vandal and sparing a branch you may save more than the worth of your time.

When the fever for rearrangement strikes you it is all right to swap the furniture about, putting the secretaire where the sofa was during the winter and reversing the order of the grandfather clock and the whatnot, for there is nothing final in such arrangements. But when the trees are mutilated the damage is done, and nothing can be done to repair it.
